Language and Culture Studies: Significance and Prospects

15-16 April 2021

Call for Papers

NingBoTech University, celebrating its twentieth anniversary this year, is one of the Chinese strategic partners of Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań for multidimensional, multidisciplinary research and educational projects. The cooperation between the two institutions is systematically enhanced, regardless of the pandemic circumstances. The online conference, proposed and jointly organised by the Polish Studies Center at NingBoTech University and Department of Chinese Studies at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań will provide an opportunity for academic exchange in linguistics and cultural studies. Aimed at promoting the significance and prospects of such studies between China and Central and Eastern Europe (CEE), apart from the representatives of the above mentioned institutions, the conference will also host participants from other Chinese and CEE universities.

We invite scholars and PhD students from China, Poland and other CEE countries to submit papers concerning language and culture studies. The main topics of the conference will be: documentary and corpus linguistics, comparative literature, glottodidactics, second-language acquisition, glocalisation of culture, cultural relations and translation.

Abstracts of 400-500 words (including up to 5 references) for 20-minute presentations in English should be sent to ningbozinan@amu.edu.pl. The abstracts should include the author's name, affiliation, contact e-mail address and title of paper.
